

CHURCHILL, F. D. R. STUDY WAR STRATEGY

The War Today...

By DeWitt MacKenzie
AP War Analyst

FOR once Messrs Roosevelt and Churchill are going into conference without employing the customary smoke-screen of secrecy, and as a matter of fact haven't even attempted to conceal the approach of what is likely to be one of the most momentous meetings of the war.

This doesn't mean that the forthcoming parley will be held in the open for all to hear. We are left to figure out for ourselves what questions will be debated at this critical moment. Still, the trend of events indicate that there are at least two major problems with which the conference will be concerned, and they are these:

1. The opening up of that much and warmly debated front in western Europe, so as to capitalize to the full the amazing success of the Red offensive.

2. The post-war policy which will bring the best cooperation among the United States, Russia and Britain in particular, and the other Allies in general. This contemplates the probability that the Musscovites are likely to emerge from the war as the dominant power both in Europe and the Orient.

These questions would seem to be urgent because of the unexpected speediness of the Allied successes both in Russia and in the Mediterranean theater. Plans which were made at the last meeting of the Allied chief presumably need bringing up to date.

From the military standpoint the question would seem to be what we do when we have finished with Sicily. There has been considerable talk of a quick invasion of the Italian mainland, to take advantage of the patent weakness there. However, the more one contemplates the task of invading and subduing the peninsula as the next major move, the less attractive it appears—a lot of labor for a return of doubtful value. The conquest of Italy has lost much of its fire, what with the defection of Mussolini and the resignation of fascism to the ash-can.

THE NUT we want to crack is Hitler, and we want to get at him the quickest way possible. The Russians again are urgently pointing out that the speedy way to smash the Fuehrer is to open up the new front in France, while the Red armies have the Nazis on the run in the east. This would place the Boche between two mighty millstones.

That's a logical move, providing the Anglo-American Allies are capable of undertaking what undoubtedly would be one of the greatest and most dangerous operations of the whole war—a landing in France from England. The consensus of military men all along has been

VOTING LIGHT AS OHIO HOLDS CITY PRIMARIES

Less Than Half of Eligible Voters Turn Out in State Balloting

(By Associated Press)
Preceded by listless campaigns, municipal primary elections in a number of Ohio cities yesterday attracted less than half the eligible voters, virtually complete unofficial returns indicated today.

One of the most hotly contested races in the state was at Youngstown, in the first city primary in more than two decades. The Republican mayoralty race, first to be held after repeal of a city charter providing for a non-partisan election, resulted in Arthur W. Williams, investment salesman, taking a 221-vote lead over his closest competitor.

Williams polled 5,368, and Council President Arthur H. Gundry received 5,147 votes.

In Youngstown's Democratic primary, City Engineer Ralph W. O'Neill was given a substantial margin over Mahoning County Commissioner Thomas R. Bees and Assistant City Law Director James W. Cannon.

Akron's blind mayor, George J. Harter, won a one-sided renomination in a Democratic primary, and former Councilman Charles E. Slusser was given a substantial plurality in the G. O. P. balloting.

Harter defeated Harry Halper, former candidate for lieutenant governor, 8,644 to 2,234. Slusser was nominated over Councilman Roy Thorn and A. C. (Tod) Bender.

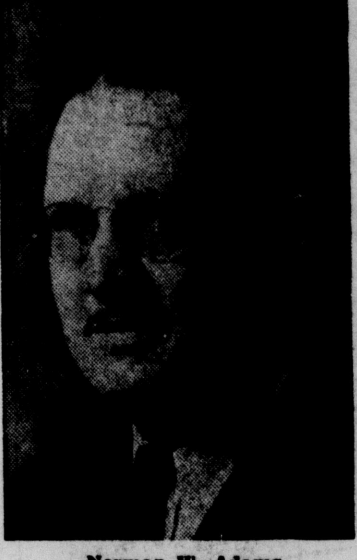

Canton Nominees
Carl F. Klein, Stark county Democratic chairman, was nominated in Democratic mayoralty voting at Canton, piling up a margin of nearly two to one over former Mayor Herman R. Witter. Canton Republicans staged a five-man race for the nomination, with Brady L. Hawk successful by a two to one plurality over State Sen. Robert A. Pollock, his nearest rival.

Mayor Harry Van Wagoner was nominated for the third time by Lorain Republicans by a heavy margin, and will oppose Council President Andrew Parabek in the November balloting. Parabek was nominated in the Democratic primary.

Also renominated was Lancaster's Mayor William J. Belhorn, a Democrat, who defeated Charles W. White. Fred Von Stein won the Republican mayoralty nomination.

Rotarians' Guest

Norman W. Adams

Rotarians made plans for their annual picnic next Tuesday at the Salem Country club and for entertaining their district governor, Norman W. Adams of Warren, on Tuesday, Aug. 24, at their meeting yesterday in the Memorial building.

Reports indicated that attendance of club members and their families at the picnic would be approximately 100. A program of sports in the afternoon, a picnic supper and entertainment in the evening is being arranged by a committee including Chairman Clyde McKee, W. H. Matthews and David Sear. A ball game between teams captained by Sear and E. M. Stephenson will be a feature.

Adams, elected governor of District No. 158 at the annual district conference in Youngstown last June, will pay his official visit to the Salem club at noon Tuesday, Aug. 24.

BRITISH ARMY WITHIN SIGHT OF MAINLAND

Make Further Advance Toward Messina: Warships Bombard Naples

(By Associated Press)
ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Aug. 11.—The British Eighth army in Sicily advanced to within sight of the Italian mainland while British warships bombarded Italian shipyards in the Bay of Naples, 130 miles of Rome, and other mainland military targets. Allied headquarters announced today.

British forces advanced seven miles along the east coast of Sicily under the shadow of Mt. Etna to capture the town of Guardia, 16 miles south of Taormina and 40 miles from Messina, the bulletin announced. British Tommies on the east slopes of Mt. Etna thus gained their first view of the Italian mainland.

The inshore bombardment of the construction and repair yards at Castellammare at the southern edge of the Bay of Naples took place Monday night, with British destroyers and cruisers moving in close to the target to pour round after round into the yards which were capable of handling ships up to 500 feet in length.

At the same time other units of the fleet attacked Cape Vaticano on the instep of the Italian boot about 25 miles north of San Giovanni where the main Italian railroad line operates close to the shore of the Tyrrhenian sea.

Consolidate Positions
On the north coast American Seventh army forces "consolidated the positions reached in the successful landing operations at the mouth of the Romarno river reported yesterday" the Allied communique said.

(The leading communique, reported by The Associated Press from a Rome broadcast, said heavy defensive fighting took place in the central and northern sectors of the Sicily front "in order to check the enemy advance."

"The communique announced a total of 124 persons killed and 392 injured in the last RAF bombings of Turin, Milan and Genoa in northern Italy, including 101 killed and 267 injured at Milan. The communique said Messina was "intensively and repeatedly bombed" yesterday.

"Four transports, two steamers, a light cruiser and a destroyer were damaged in Axis aerial attacks at Augusta, Palermo and Syracuse, the communique declared.

Advancing American and Canadian columns converging on Randazzo, key to the Axis last ditch defense of the Messina bridgehead, found the mountain roads blocked by masses of volcanic rock torn from the hills by Nazi dynamite crews while small units of machinegunners entrenched in strongpoints protected in some places by barbed wire pecked away at the attacking forces.

The fall of Randazzo appeared imminent, however, as the Germans continued to withdraw the bulk of their forces and equipment and reports placed the Allied

CANADIAN-BRITISH CO-OPERATION in Sicily is exemplified in this strategy conference between Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery, left, commander of the British Eighth Army, and Maj. Gen. Soviet Drive On Kharkov, Bryansk Rolls Unchecked

(By Associated Press)
MOSCOW, Aug. 11.—The Red army is rolling on unchecked in its twin drives toward the Ukrainian city of Kharkov and Bryansk to the north, capturing village after village and inflicting heavy losses on the retreating Germans, the Russians declared today.

With Kharkov pocketed on three sides by a five-pronged drive, another Russian column has bitten deep into the rich Russian grain territory and is only 14 miles from Sumy and 190 miles east of the capital city of Kiev, a Soviet communique disclosed.

Sumy, an important railroad point, is located some 90 miles northwest of Kharkov on the line linking the steel center with the German base at Bryansk.

The Russians announced their forces advancing toward Bryansk along the railway from Orel had captured a railway town 45 miles east of the city.

Seize 70 Villages
Seventy towns and villages were reported captured by the Russians in the Kharkov sector and 30 more in the Bryansk area as the Red army marked up important gains in a general advance along the entire active front almost 300 miles in length.

Voters At Lisbon Nominate Mayor Rauch For 7th Term

Mayor C. G. Rauch

LISBON, Aug. 11.—Republicans renominated Mayor G. Cecil Rauch for a seventh term when a grand total of 582 voters visited the polls in Tuesday's primary election to register an all-time low here.

The total for the village's six precincts fell short by 132 the vote cast two years ago.

Mayor Rauch received 374 votes to the 192 accorded his Republican opponent, Clyde V. Hedley, garage dealer who previously fled to win the mayoralty nomination over Rauch.

There were seven Republican candidates for six council seats, but all incumbents were re-nominated. H. T. Dewes, an official of the National Brass & Copper Co., lost out for his bid into council when he polled only 308 votes. The votes of the other councilmen were:

H. G. Arter, 439; C. W. Baill, 440; E. A. Helm, 362; L. H. Johnson, 441; Graham Kearney, 426; C. G. Van Fossan, 365.

Clerk: Kenneth Hiscox, 503.
Treasurer: Mrs. Helen Blackburn, 487.

Board of public affairs: W. M. Morgan, 404; R. T. Morris, 398; J. H. Vogan, 397; all incumbents, re-nominated.

Democrats, while offering no candidates, conducted a write-in campaign which resulted in 40 names being written in on ballots in three precincts.

Lloyd Binsley and Harry Neish, mayoralty write-ins, received five and three votes, respectively. Dr. J. C. Gruber received one vote for mayor. In addition, nine names were written in for clerk, four for treasurer, 15 for council and nine for the board of public affairs, each credited with one or two votes.

Prime Minister In Canada For New Meeting

By DOUGLAS CORNELL

QUEBEC, Aug. 11.—Within the ancient battlements of an obsolete fortress, the prime ministers of Britain and Canada surveyed today the heartening successes of Allied stabs at the Axis and the strategy needed to expand them into assaults designed to attain a total victory.

The conferences between Winston Churchill of Britain and W. L. MacKenzie King of Canada and their chiefs of staff were a prelude to later discussions between Churchill and President Roosevelt and British-American military experts.

The round, ever-spectacular Churchill again had surmounted the dangers of a wartime crossing of the Atlantic for war talks which appeared certain to be translated into more bad news for enemy forces already reeling back on world-wide battlefronts.

He arrived in Quebec late yesterday and drove to the citadel towering over this historic old walled city. There, in the fortress which is a relic of the days when the French ruled a goodly segment of North America, he and MacKenzie King began their deliberations last night.

Cautiously an official statement from Churchill's office said that "during the evening the two prime ministers discussed the international situation and plans for Mr. Churchill's stay" as the guest of the Dominion.

The always intriguing question of times and places for invasion of the European continent which Churchill and Roosevelt repeatedly have declared to be in the offing was in the forefront of the speculation centering around the conference here. Again, the necessity of keeping the foe in the dark superseded all other considerations.

But the imminent erasure of Axis forces in Sicily poised powerful Allied armies two miles across a narrow strait from the Italian mainland.

Russia Not Represented
On the word of President Roosevelt in Washington Russia once more seemed to be representing to sit in either on the British-Canadian parleys here or the scheduled British-American meetings.

To avoid giving the Axis any points on commanders in specific war theaters brought here for the war deliberations, only the names of the British chief of staff who always accompany Churchill to such meetings were announced.

They were Admiral of the Fleet Sir Dudley Pound, first sea lord; Air Chief Marshal Sir Charles Portal, chief of air staff; Sir Alan Brooke, chief of the Imperial general staff; Vice-Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten, who commands the renowned commandos; and Lt. Gen. Sir Hastings Ismay, chief of staff to Churchill in his capacity as minister of defence.

The Prime minister's wife and daughter, Mary, the latter a subaltern in the Auxiliary Territorial Service, also came along with Churchill in his fourth visit to North American since Britain went to war.

NEW BLOWS AT AXIS HINTED

Churchill Journey Interpreted As Forecasting New Offensive

(By Associated Press)
LONDON, Aug. 11.—New blows of unprecedented force against the Axis by land and air—possibly from Britain this time—were forecast here today as the impending Churchill-Roosevelt war strategy conferences stirred a flood of speculation and conjecture.

With Italy virtually beaten to her knees, it was generally regarded as certain that the forthcoming talks between the British prime minister and the American President would deal primarily with putting a quick end to the Italian campaign so the Allies can turn their full attention to Germany.

The next move was expected to be on an even broader scale than the successful Sicilian invasion, with the objective of forcing Germany to withdraw a substantial part of her troops from the Russian front.

The possibility that Germany may be defeated this year is being discussed—even though cautiously—in all quarters, and the fact that Premier Joseph Stalin has committed large armies to his present summer offensive underscores this hope.

Center of Activity
Indications that Britain may be the scene of major military operations are:

1. Reports that large areas of Britain's coastline will be barred to visitors in the near future.

2. Arrival in Britain of substantial reinforcements of fully-trained American and Canadian troops together with a great increase in the number of available air bases.

3. A noticeable influx of high-ranking Allied officers from other war theaters, together with a heavy increase in railway traffic throughout Great Britain.

Creation of a new military command even more comprehensive than the combined command in the Mediterranean for military tasks on the European mainland was suggested by the times of London as a possible major objective of the Churchill-Roosevelt conference.

"The Allies have gained so much during the summer that even the widest and most far-sighted plans are in danger of being out-moded by events," the times said.

Missionary Recalls Cruelties As Japs Take Chinese Cities

Japanese atrocities as they occupied cities in China and terrible conditions that followed were described by Miss Freda Girsberger of Beloit, a returned missionary, in a talk before the Rotary club Tuesday noon in the Memorial building.

Miss Girsberger told how the Chinese were cruelly treated and humiliated by their conquerors. Thousands died of starvation when the value of their money was decreased 50 per cent and inflationary prices made it impossible for them to buy food, she said.

She recalled that for many years hundreds of Chinese had walked many miles to attend services at the missionary chapel to learn more about Christianity, and that they had remained loyal to the missionaries, often risking their lives to bring them food and other supplies.

Miss Girsberger, who spent 19 years in China as a missionary from the Ohio Yearly Meeting of Friends at Damascus, finally was compelled by the Japs to leave and she, with other missionaries, arrived back in this country a year ago. The homeward journey of 17,000 miles first took them to East Portugal and then to South America and then on to New York on the "Gripsholm."

The speaker was presented to the club by Dr. L. W. Atkinson.

Deferment of Farm Help Will Be Discussed Friday

LISBON, Aug. 11.—A meeting will be held at 2 p. m. Friday in court room No. 2 at the courthouse by members of Salem, Lisbon and East Liverpool draft boards, Farm War board members and state Selective Service officials to discuss and determine a policy for the deferment of young men on farms.

TEACHER SHORTAGE HITS RURAL AREAS

Rural schools in Columbiana county need 29 teachers and two principals, County School Supt. W. E. Roberts said today. The large number of instructors is needed, despite a consolidation of several districts into three larger units.

At least 25 teachers are required for elementary rural schools before the new term opens Sept. 7. High schools lack two industrial arts teachers, a social science and a home economics instructor, and two principals.

Roberts said that, unless additional teachers are found, one-room schools throughout the district will have to be eliminated and the students transported to central points.

County Fair Will Be Held Sept. 14-17

Featuring displays of livestock and farm produce, the 98th annual Columbiana county fair will be held at the Lisbon fairgrounds Sept. 14 to 17, inclusive, under the auspices of the County Agricultural society.

The exposition, lasting four days and three nights, will feature horse racing, horse pulling contests, free attractions and a patriotic fireworks exhibit on Wednesday and Thursday, while Friday will be observed as Junior Fair day when all school children will be admitted free.

Officers of the county will provide a special program during the morning and pony races in the afternoon.

Premium lists have been issued by the fair board, and entries for exhibits in the various departments will be received at the office of Secretary J. H. Sinclair at the fairgrounds beginning Sept. 1.

Escapes, Retaken, Given Term at Industrial School

LISBON, Aug. 11.—Clarence McKinnon, 15-year-old East Liverpool youth, who fled from the sheriff's office Monday afternoon after he had been brought there for questioning in connection with the theft of two trucks, was apprehended by Sheriff George Hayes last night at a theater in East Liverpool.

McKinnon will be returned to the Boys Industrial school at Lancaster as a parole violator, the charge of auto theft against him in juvenile court to be suspended.

Peters, Storck Nominated In Wellsville Primaries
WELLSVILLE, Aug. 11.—Wellsville primary election returns gave Clarence H. Peters, Republican incumbent, unopposed for his second term nomination, 440 votes and August Storck, Democrat, president of council, won as his opponent with 174 votes.

Voters approved a two-mill school levy, 444 to 207.

HITLER'S DECLINE

Stories coming from Europe's listening posts to the effect that Hitler is out as the ruler of Germany may be no more than rumors thus far but even if this be true they are an indication of the trend inside the reich. Dictatorship cannot stand adversity and the doom of the dictatorships was sealed when war moved against Germany and her satellites. Hitler is finished and whether his fall comes today or next month is not important.

This does not mean that the war is any nearer its end although it is another indication that the beginning of the end is in sight and that victory for the United Nations is dawning far off on the horizon of coming events.

The transfer of power may make the final stages somewhat more difficult for the military skill of German's trained war leaders will be more potent than Hitler's intuition. The change, however, came too late to avert the disaster that is coming for all that Hitler instituted and all that he stood for.

There is nothing to indicate that the attitude of the German nation, or at least its military clique, has undergone any important change. If the reports are true, they mean that Hitler has failed as a military leader and that new efforts are being made to salvage something out of the collapse of his power.

The fact that the men Hitler put in power are still running the German war machine shows that there has been no revolution in the thinking of the German nation. The fact that Goering is one of the triumvirate after the bubble of invincibility which once surrounded his luftwaffe war punctures shows that Nazism still rules the reich.

There is hard fighting ahead but changes inside Germany prove that the Nazis themselves now realize that they followed a false star which led them into quicksands of disaster.

THE RETURN OF NATURE

Man is doing a pretty fair job of returning to the people of Ohio a part of the wild life they almost annihilated in their reckless expenditure of public resources.

Hunters and fishermen had almost stripped the streams and the fields of wild life when the state and private organizations stepped in with a program of rehabilitation, results of which are now apparent.

A systematic restocking plan has brought good fishing to Ohio streams and lakes and the flood control dams built in the last decade have provided new fishing places. Pheasants are becoming more numerous, rabbits are all too plentiful in the opinion of the thousands of Victory gardeners and even deer have made such a return in some sections that they are a menace to crops and there is talk of a limited open season.

With hunting at a minimum this year, wild life probably will show an even greater increase. Under sensible regulation and with a good restocking program, fields and waters will again provide an important source of outdoor sports and food for the Ohio family.

Nature needs only a little help to replenish that which man has so ruthlessly destroyed.

A.W.O.L. FROM WAR JOB

Some war workers—all honor to them—are on their job with high patriotic resolve to turn out the tools of victory and bring the war to a successful end just as speedily as possible. Employment figures show that there are some others who have no such worthy motive.

The absentee figures are appalling. Figures from the plants show that in some areas more than 7 per cent of the workers are away from the job every day. Some absence is unavoidable but when the daily average runs that high it means only that there are slackers and shirkers on the payroll.

America has honored in many ways the men and women who fight their share of the war at the machines. It will continue to do so. Those who do their duty deserve chevrons and ribbons just as richly as the men with the guns they have made. The worker who goes A.W.O.L. wears his decorations falsely. Loss of a single day from his job without good reason strips him of his right to be proud of the "E" which floats from the factory flagstaff, or of the good record which did not bring an "E". Only the utmost is enough on the home front.

A SYMBOL FOR FRANCE

The floating of the great liner Normandie is more than a great engineering feat or a profitable piece of salvage. It is a gesture which may do much toward improving relations between France and the United States.

Nothing which has happened during the 150 years of friendship between the two countries aroused greater indignation on the part of the French than the burning and sinking of this vessel of which they were so proud. Left with us for safekeeping at the outbreak of the war and taken over by this government the French and many others including a lot of good Americans regarded her sinking as at least an act of almost incredible carelessness.

The fact that the Normandie has risen from the mud of the river flats and now floats again will be welcome news to Americans and Frenchmen alike. It is symbolic of the rebuilding which must be done with men and nations. It is a portent of the day when sunken hopes will be raised again.

From Vice President Wallace's point of view, apparently anyone is an American Fascist who would rather have a steak than baloney.

We must think in terms of international brotherhood rather than national selfishness.—Sen. Alexander Wiley of Wisconsin.

FARM PRODUCTION

COLUMBUS, Aug. 11.—Farmers must revise their production habits because grain supplies are inadequate for raising fat hogs and prime beef, Murray D. Lincoln, Ohio Farm bureau director and a U. S. representative at the United Nations Food conference, asserted today.

Lincoln explained that seven pounds of livestock feed grain were required to produce one pound of meat, which he said had only half the nutritive value of the grain used to produce it. He said wartime shortages required a shift to a diet consisting largely of cereal foods.

Commenting on a Washington report that a $5,000,000 proposal to contract with farmers for food production was under consideration, Lincoln said some plan appeared necessary to guarantee farmers making the wartime production shift, an adequate return on their investments.

"I would prefer to see the food production problem solved without the use of subsidies, Lincoln told interviewers, 'because once that kind of thing starts, it's hard to stop. But the important thing is to get production, and some governmental plan may have to be followed as the lesser evil.'"

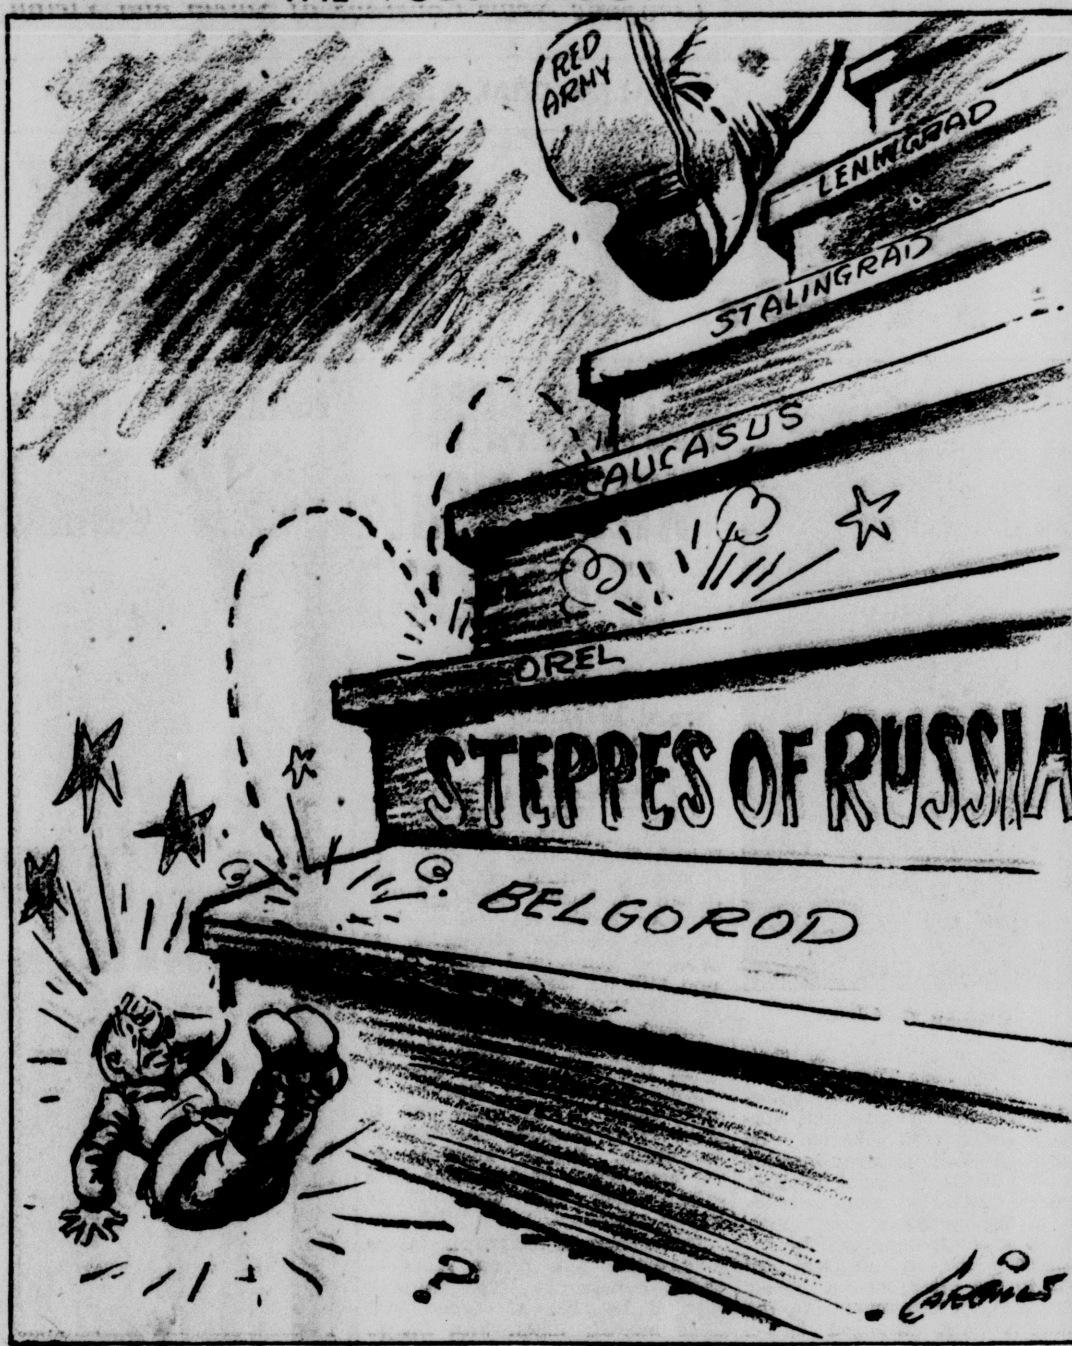

The reported proposal would guarantee prices on a quantity or acreage basis to farmers contracting with the government for crops under 1944 production goals.

Lincoln expressed belief, however, that instead of the contract plan, federal agencies would adopt a program of guaranteeing prices for war-vital commodities to insure production.

This is on the authority of Dr. Ellsworth Huntington, of Yale, in the book AMERICA AT WAR (published by Prentice-Hall, New York).

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

In searching for reasons and explanations of why one nation should be more vigorous than another, I am immediately impressed with the fact that on the whole the lands where overpopulation prevails are low in the scale, and in the lands where the population is of a size where all can be fed, where all have a chance to work and earn, health and vigor are high.

Population Density

Why, for instance, should there be any difference between France and Italy? They are about the same kind of people and should have about the same health and vigor. But France, while overpopulated like all of Europe, still has living room in a fairly fertile land, while the population density of Italy is about twice France's.

In the tropics, for instance, a man may absorb plenty of vitamin B, but he sweats or otherwise expends it out before it has a chance to act. In these two spots man gets the full value of its energizing power and in a climate that constantly stimulates him to effort.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, 235 E. 45th st., New York. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene," and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

Job to See Films

SOMEWHERE IN AUSTRALIA.—Hollywood's most famous stars would be flattered if they could see the length to which doughboys in Australia go to spend an hour or two before the silver screen. In one American unit the doughboys have to march four miles in battle dress, carrying rifles, to reach the beach. There they embark for the neighboring island where movies are shown once weekly. It's a three hour job getting to the "theatre."

HOLLYWOOD, Calif.—C. E. Dobbins, 81, who was evacuated from Paris during the Franco-Prussian war, in a balloon, prides himself on being one of the oldest and earliest stamp collectors in the United States. His one great regret in his life is that the balloon which evacuated him from Paris back in 1870 was not carrying air mail at the time.

Do you get irritable easily?	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>
Do you feel depressed—nervous?	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>

Do you feel headachy—depressed—irritable—tired—due to a sluggish, constipated condition? Do you want faster and more effective all-around relief than you can get from an ordinary simple laxative alone? Then, as medical science proves, you should do two things:

1. Get liver bile flowing freely.
 2. Clear out the intestinal tract.
- To do both, take double-acting Carter's Little Liver Pills tonight. The first thing Carter's usually do while you're comfortably asleep is to increase the flow of liver bile—a vital digestive juice. This helps to digest your food properly. This first Carter's action alone may make you feel much better when you wake up!

Then, Carter's second action helps relieve the sluggish condition that may easily be at the bottom of all your headachy, depressed, tired feeling.

Carter's double action is due to their special formula. Thousands know how well they work. Get Carter's Little Liver Pills today—only 25¢ at any drugstore. Take as directed. You'll be glad you did.

Third-Grader Changes
Lambs Into War Bonds

HATTIESBURG, Miss. — Once upon a time there was a little girl named Mary, who had a little lamb which followed her everywhere and had fleece as white as snow, etcetera. But that's not very practical as Elizabeth Katherine Fortenberry sees it.

"Lis," all of seven and in the third grade, is a practical business woman. She had some little lambs, but she didn't let them follow her or anything of the sort. She sold them and bought war stamps.

It was her own idea. And because it worked so well, she bought a mother sheep who had some little lambs. She sold those too — for more war stamps.

AMERICAN BRED by FRANKEN MELONEY

CHAPTER THIRTY

When the coffee started to percolate, Rowdy gave a sharp bark. She was fascinated by the mysteries of percolation.

"Be quiet," Ann warned. "You'll wake up the song-bird next door."

But the song-bird was already awake. Steps sounded on the porch, and Rowdy rushed to the threshold, sniffing. Ann waited for her to bark, but she only wagged her tail.

"Oh!" Ann breathed, and suddenly all the lights in the universe blazed up in a galaxy of glory.

"Please, lady," his voice wheedled from the other side of the door, "I smell a coffee, you give me a cup of coffee, I feel umbril."

"Go away!" Ann called back, with her heart pounding like mad. "I'm not dressed yet!"

"What's this?" he disapproved. "You're not dressed yet, and it's five o'clock? Anyway, I don't like women who plaster their faces up with powder and lipstick. And besides my coffee's getting cold. Gang-way, I'm coming in!"

"Well, it's your Where did you come from, of all people!" she cried, with a fine pretense of astonishment.

"Flew in from the Coast last night."

"Then you do work occasionally."

"When it doesn't interfere too much with pleasure. Oh, and say, I want to thank you for supplying that tune last night. It enabled me to tiddle right off to the soundest sleep I've had in days."

"That's just ducky," Ann acknowledged dryly. "Now if you'll excuse me, I'll go out for my walk."

"I wouldn't dream of letting you go alone."

"I was afraid of that."

"Well, tell me what's been happening?" he invited, as they hit the woods' road that led back over the hill from the Friends'.

"Not very much."

"Oh, come now. It's been ten days since I last saw you. What about Helen?"

"I haven't seen her. Having no telephone's been a blessing in disguise."

Christopher grunted. "What! Am I to understand Helen's washed her hands of you?"

"Completely."

"Lord be praised! And Mr. Barton?"

"He's down in Kentucky."

They walked along in silence for many moments. Then he asked, "Do you take a long hike like this every day?"

"Five miles."

"It's done wonders for you. You look marvelous."

"I'm not doing it for me. Any benefit I may receive is just so much by-product."

"You mean you're doing it for Rowdy?" He smiled tolerantly.

"What is it, a new wrinkle for canine beauty, early morning workouts?"

"Stick around, Mr. Wain. Paul and I will show you some real tricks in the dog business."

His face grew grave. "Ann, you're not doing this seriously? You're not really going to show Rowdy in the Morris and Essex? I thought you were just trying to get a rise out of me that day in Broadfields."

She flung out her hands a little desperately. "Oh, you don't understand. It isn't just me or Rowdy—or you, for that matter. It's Paul, he needs a win. Wolfgang isn't even earning his keep. Paul's broke, and he can't afford to go broke."

"But if Rowdy loses, will that help him out of a hole?"

"Rowdy can't lose, I tell you. She mustn't."

"Ann," Christopher's tone had turned to pleading. In the dog business you seldom win when you have to. That's when the breaks go against you. It very often takes all the joy out of a win when you know that you've licked somebody who had counted on it to help him make a living, to buy food with. I've seen them come to the shows with not enough gas to get home—hoping, believing, that the few dollars prize money would see them through. It'll be a bit of a boost to Paul if Gretel takes her class. But it'll be a black eye if Rowdy falls down—And don't tell me she won at the Sweepstakes!" he ended in a roar. "If you do, I'll wring your neck!"

"Oh, I'm a better sport than that," Ann's smile was both innocent and pleasant.

They walked on in silence. "I've got to get back to town," Christopher said, as they came to the cabins. "Think Paul would let me stake him to a phone? No. On second thought, I won't. Tom Barton'll only be hanging on the other end of it."

Ann was about to reassure him, when she changed her mind. "Why should I?" she asked herself.

Paul drew up before the toll box at the Holland Tunnel. A lengthy examination of his pockets revealed the sum total of thirty-five cents.

"That new tire at White Plains just about cleaned me out of cash," he discovered unhappily. "I need fifteen cents more."

Ann rummaged in her handbag. "I've got change," she coaxed. "The coins eluded her. 'Eureka!' She fished forth two dimes. The attendant held out five cents in return. Rowdy reached her head toward his outstretched hand. The man in blue said something about muzzles, and compromised by tossing the nickel into Ann's lap.

"There was a blurring rush of white tiled tunnel. Horns tooted behind them."

"What's their hurry?" Paul exploded righteously. "We're not allowed to go more than thirty-five in the tunnel."

"We're only going thirty," Ann remarked.

"That's all the old bus will make. There's something wrong with it."

Once out of the tunnel, a procession of angry drivers ostentatiously passed them, their lips moving in silent denunciation of people who slowed down modern progress with out-of-date jalopies.

A glorified wagon with white-walled tires and a cargo of poodles passed them.

"There goes the Best in Show," Paul announced. "The black one. That's Rumpelstiltskin. He went best in the Garden."

Rumpelstiltskin traveled in a special compartment by himself, and gazed, remote and aloof, at the passing world. Ann glanced down at Rowdy who was playing a game with a fly that had nestled on her nose. She'd peer with eager cross-eyed intent at the intruder, and then twitch her nostrils. Up would go the fly, only to buzz about and light once more on Rowdy's nose.

Several cars later, something in sixteen cylinders and grated sides drew up beside them.

"That's the Greyling outfit. That's a real set-up. Running water and a complete veterinarian room. The dog with the white star on her face," Paul pointed, "is Greyling's Astra of Heathcote. She'll go best in her group."

"What's the idea of a show anyway, Paul," Ann demanded, "when everybody knows all the winners in advance?" Or is it just a social function?"

"Oh, there's always the chance of a better dog coming along, or an accident," Paul tossed off, with a casual clearing of his throat.

"And we're going along hoping for a first-rate catastrophe," Ann commented bitterly. "Paul, I'm getting cold feet. And so are you. You look green."

"Well, we are sort of on the spot," Paul confessed. "But we've got a good dog, and I've been in a spot before."

The good dog was busy at the moment scratching her ear and looking about as graceful as a camel coming to earth. Ann winced.

"Paul, tell me the truth, has any dog ever been entered with a claim price as high as five thousand dollars?"

"No, but there's no reason why one shouldn't be," Paul's defiance was pathetically transparent. "There always has to be a first time," he rationalized, "and when you can't afford to take an advertisement you have to get publicity somehow."

"I know," Ann broke in. "We went all over that."

"You'll see. It'll work. We'll get some attention, anyway."

"Oh, definitely. If you were to announce that you were going to jump out of an airplane with a paper parasol in place of a parachute, several thousand people would be at hand—to see you break your neck," she finished ironically.

"That's the rough idea. Only in this case, see, Rowdy has a chance, a hundred to one chance."

Ann gave a sick smile. "I see. Personally, though, I'd prefer the jump from the plane, then I wouldn't hear them laughing afterwards."

"There's worse odds than a hundred to one. Where's your gambling instinct?"

"It looks like a thousand to one."

Ann gasped as they drove into the expansive grounds of the Morris and Essex show. "Let's get into some out-of-the-way place where I can go to pieces in private."

"We go with the best of them," Paul insisted, and trailed the two hundred inch wheelbase of the Greyling kennel caravan into a line and parked brazenly beside it.

The Greyling chauffeur gave them a disdainful look, the kind of look that can brush dust off a sleeve. But Ann didn't notice. Her attention was on Rowdy, who, with all the excitement that surrounded her, had begun to look a little like a Great Dane.

Paul eyed her speculatively. "Some of them come alive at shows, some of them go dead," he remarked. "Mom says she probably wasn't right at the Sweepstakes because you weren't with her. Well, we'll see." He began to gather together bags and water-pails and a bundle of paraphernalia. "I'll go ahead. You give her a five minutes' walk and then come into the bench."

No Boost In Ohio Milk Prices Seen For Three Months

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—There will be no increase in farm milk prices in Ohio for at least three months and maybe not then, says Charles W. Holman of the National Cooperative Milk Producers' federation.

Reporting on a conference of milk producers' representatives from Ohio, Indiana, Michigan and West Virginia with war food administration officials yesterday, Holman said he learned the government's subsidy program would have to be worked out before any increase would be considered.

Previously, office of price administration spokesmen told the group increases in agricultural prices would not be approved by OPA until the price roll-back program was readied for operation. The producers are asking a 25 per cent increase, claiming it is necessary to cover added operating costs and bring about needed production boosts.

"This effort of dairymen to have the milk price at the farm raised in order to increase production is not confined to any one section of the country," Holman declared. "New England is as disturbed by the situation as is the Midwest. But I can't hold out any hope for immediate relief. If any raise is approved it can't be expected before 90 days."

George Washington was one of the wealthiest men in the country, owning 110,000 acres of real estate at his death.

Midsummer Meteors, Perseids, Visible In Sky This Week

BY HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

Associated Press Science Editor
NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—This is the week of the midsummer meteors, the perseids, which for 1112 years straight have been seen in the northeast sky each summer.

The nights to look are tonight to Thursday. The largest numbers should be seen Wednesday night, and the best time is after midnight after the moon has set.

The meteors are small, usually not much bigger than grains of sand. They are swift, travelling at more than 40 miles a second at about 60 miles above the earth. Size and speed combine to give them the appearance of little tear-drops. For this reason the Irish, centuries ago, named them the tears of St. Lawrence.

The Mexicans dubbed them flying hairs, due to another peculiarity. Many leave fleeting trails, which appear to be very slender, occasionally giving the illusion of a train of tiny sparks.

They are part of a vast river of meteors, whose orbit is between two and three billion miles long. That takes them thousands of times farther away from the sun than the earth at its greatest distance. This orbit stands on its head in reference to the plane of the earth's orbit. Almost literally these perseids come down from above.

Each midsummer the earth cuts through the stream in August. The width of the stream has been variously estimated at from a few million miles to 15,000,000 miles.

Perseids take 108 years to make the circuit of the sun. Their orbit coincides with Tuttle's comet, which is due to return to sight of the earth in 1983.

Anywhere from 10 to 60 of these meteors are likely to be visible each hour especially after midnight.

The American Meteor society, through its president, Dr. Charles P. Olivier, requests that the public observe and count the perseid meteors this year. The counts should be given by the hour, specifying how many an observer saw and giving the clock time such 12 to 1 o'clock, or 1:30 to 2:30. The counts should be mailed to Dr. Olivier, Flower Observatory, Upper Derby, Pa.

He makes a special request for counts from the south and midwest.

NEWSBOY DELIVERS

STUEBENVILLE -- Sgt. George (Bully) Glessner, tail-gunner on a U. S. bomber, is probably the first American "newsboy" to be decorated for bravery after delivering his papers.

Out on a raiding expedition over Sicily, Glessner dropped a copy of the Stuebenville Herald-Star from the skies over the Italian mainland.

Wounded on the trips, the "newsy" had told Capt. Jack Preble, fellow member of his Mediterranean bomber squadron and former Herald-Star staff member, "he would like to be the first newsboy to deliver a Herald-Star to Italy."

"He delivered the paper all right," Preble reported, "but he got shot up doing it."

Glessner was awarded the Purple Heart and Oak Leaf Cluster for bravery in the sky battle which followed delivery of his newspaper.

THE HUSBAND ALWAYS PAYS

ATHENS, Tenn. -- W. L. Pope's first official act, upon assuming city recorder duties was to impose a fine upon a motorist for parking near a fire plug.

But, alas the defendant was his wife. He fined her $2 and had to reach in his own pocket for the money!

THE KEEPER OF THE FRUIT

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. -- Sam Horne, who operates a fruit stand in Knoxville's famous old Market House, grew tired of prospective customers sneering at his cantaloupes and persimmons to determine if they were sufficiently ripe. Too much rot followed such tactics.

So he placed a box of Irish potatoes in his pile of peaches with this sign: "Squeeze the Potatoes." Now a lot of people see the sign, stop, squeeze the potatoes, but fail to get the point.

ALVA, Okla. -- W. D. Myers began in the banking business by sweeping out and Elk City, Kas. bank.

American Soldiers Proud of U. S. Flag, Salem Boy Writes

A letter written by a Salem youth seeing action with the U. S. Army in Africa--written on July 4--might be considered a typical expression of the American soldier's mental attitude about this war.

The letter, written by Master Sgt. Clarence R. (Bud) Wooley, J. Headquarters Co., 63rd Signal Battalion, has reached his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Wooley, R. D. 1, Salem.

Heading his letter "North Africa, July 4, 1943," Sgt. Wooley wrote: "Dear Folks--As this is the day celebrating our declaration of independence, which is, after all, the thing we are fighting to preserve, I thought it would be very appropriate to write a letter to the two people who have brought me up in such a way as to cause me to appreciate to the bottom of my heart the 'American way of living'."

"One thing for sure is that the longer a fellow is away from it, the more he appreciates it and longs to return to it."

"Proud of Stars and Stripes" "We had a very nice flag ceremony, along with a couple of other outfits and a few French and English soldiers. It certainly gives you a proud feeling when they bring the good old 'Stars and Stripes' past because now we realize what it signifies."

"Before I left the States I always, more or less, took our flag for granted, but after being away for 18 months I realize that our flag is the thing that stands for everything we love best."

"This Fourth of July celebration sort of brings back fond memories of a perfect 10 days I spent two years ago. If you will remember, Dad, that is the last time I saw you--and I think it's quite long enough, don't you? Those are absolutely the happiest days of my army career to date. And, Mother, that was the last chance I had to enjoy your cooking--and that is a very important item."

"Oh, say! My pup is in great shape and growing like a young onion shoot. One paw is about the same size as his whole body was when I first got him. Every one thinks he's ugly, but I think he is cute." "Wooley acquired a Cocker Spaniel puppy a few days ago when the mother died, kept it alive by feeding it with a medicine dropper, and has kept it with him since."

"Well, I am going to sign off for now and write more another day. Your loving son, Bud."

columns within seven miles of the mountain town.

(A Reuters dispatch to London said the distance was only two miles.)

Join With Canadians

Advance patrols of the American Seventh army moving in a line almost directly east from Casero in the interior were reported to have made a junction with Canadian units rounding lofty Mt. Etna from a northeasterly direction.

One of the riddles of the stubborn Axis defense was solved and partly liquidated yesterday when American officers discovered that heavy artillery hammering at the American columns operating along the San Agata-Casero line had been brought up over an unmapped mountain road.

Randazzo itself was little more than a heap of blazing rubble as Allied bombers returned again and again to pound German artillery parks, ammunition dumps, troop concentrations and important highway junctions.

It was evident that the closing stages of the Sicilian campaign were to be the most difficult, for as the victorious Allied armies advanced the once thinly-strewn Axis forces became a compact mass with a smaller and more advantageous front to defend.

Harold V. Boyle, Associated Press war correspondent in Sicily, reported the Germans were attempting to remove troops and heavy equipment from the island and had placed guns with a 20-mile range on the Italian mainland to protect the retreat across the narrow strait of Messina.

Sink Axis Ships

Four more Axis vessels were sunk and another damaged in continued bombardings of the Messina beaches and strait.

Air force commanders meanwhile disclosed that a total of 422 enemy planes had been destroyed in the month since the invasion began. At a cost of 181 Allied aircraft. At least 800 enemy planes were destroyed or captured on the ground, and more than 60,000 tons of enemy transport and war ships destroyed by air action.

Even larger fleets of light bombers and fighter-bombers than before were thrown into the work of destroying Axis communications and fortifications in Sicily, especially around Novaro and Randazzo, they hit several gun emplacements and caused numerous road blocks.

Bombing over Barcelona set off a huge explosion which shook planes flying 6,000 feet high.

Williams Elected State Legion Head

(By Associated Press)

CINCINNATI, Aug. 11--The Ohio American Legion was in full accord today with the provisions of the Ball-Burton senate bill which asks the United States to take the initiative in International post-war problems.

In the final session yesterday of a three-day war conference, delegates approved the objectives of the bill by resolution.

Rosster C. Williams, of Oak Hill was elected commander succeeding Martin V. Coffey of Middletown. Other officers elected were Richard A. Lindermann of Delphos, vice commander; R. B. Tharp of Washington C. H., treasurer, and Rev. Leonard T. Gerrity, chaplain of the national military home at Dayton, chaplain.

Milt Campbell, the Legion's national defense director, spoke against any change in the nation's liquor laws until men in the armed forces have returned so they may express their views.

Campbell said he "was not discussing the prohibition question but merely urging that rights of men in the armed forces be not ignored as they were in World War I."

Meat Shortage Is Laid To Restaurant Purchases

CHICAGO, Aug. 11--The National Retail Meat Dealers' association, blaming the shortage of beef for retail sale upon large sales to restaurants, called today for rationing of meat supplies to eating places similar to that covering meat dealers.

A resolution adopted at the association's 88th emergency food council declared "because of the higher ceiling price for restaurants and hotels the retail meat dealer must take what is left over but most of the time there are no leftovers."

Some of These Affect You:

Changes In Motor Vehicle Laws Effective Soon

Amendments to Ohio's motor vehicle laws, including drastic changes in the safety financial responsibility law, become operative during August and September and will affect most of the state's more than two million automobile owners, operators and chauffeurs.

Liberalization of the driver licensing law is designed for the benefit of service men and women home on furlough.

Effective Aug. 24, this amendment will enable any person on active duty with the United States armed forces to drive without a license, providing such person was licensed by the state at the time of entering military service.

Another provision affecting persons in the armed services provides that the registrar of motor vehicles may waive examination for a driver license. Presentation by the service man or woman of an honorable discharge certificate showing the person has no physical or mental disabilities will be sufficient to obtain the registrar's waiver.

Age limit for a chauffeur's permit has been reduced from 18 to 16 years. No chauffeur or operator permit shall be issued, however, to a person under 16 except that the registrar may issue a restricted license to a person of 14 or 15 years.

Financial Responsibility

To promote safety on Ohio's streets and roads and to insure adequate financial compensation to innocent victims of accidents involving motor vehicles, amendments to the safety financial responsibility law, passed by the 1943 general assembly, are of the utmost importance to every car owner and car driver.

These amendments become effective Sept. 20.

Thereafter when a judgment is obtained in a court of record against an individual in consequence of a motor vehicle accident or collision, he must satisfy the judgment or have his driving rights lifted for five years.

These driving rights cannot be suspended, however, until the registrar of motor vehicles has served notice requiring the person to satisfy or stay execution of the judgment within 30 days from date of the notice, or show cause why the driving license should not be lifted.

The registrar is required to vacate the suspension order upon proof of the satisfaction of the judgment after the order has become effective.

Moreover, in cases where the operator of a motor vehicle is convicted of manslaughter resulting from operation of a car; operating a motor vehicle under the influence of liquor or narcotics; failure to stop after an accident; commission of a felony in which a motor vehicle is used, the registrar shall revoke the offender's driving license for three years unless that person shall have satisfied the registrar of his ability to meet all damages.

Other Provisions

If a person continues to operate a car after revocation of the driver license, that person becomes immediately guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction faces imprisonment for not less than six months and a fine of not more than $500.

Vehicles of salvage companies organized under Ohio laws, and vehicles of volunteer firemen responding to fire alarms when their vehicles are identified by insignia required by the director of highways, have been classified as "emergency vehicles," under another amendment to the code.

It also was provided that no vehicle of any description shall be driven to the left of the center line of a roadway when approaching within 100 feet of an intersection or railroad grade crossing. This is to put a stop to vehicles pulling out of traffic lanes at intersections and railroad crossings.

The Forgotten Woman of World War II

● We all admire the important part being played in this war by the WACS, the WAVES, the SPARS and Women's Auxiliary groups.

We are quick to honor the heroism of our nurses at the war fronts . . . and to laud the women workers in war plants.

But well in the background, unnoticed and unsung . . . beyond the glamour and excitement of the uniform and the assembly line . . . there is another woman who is doing a magnificent war job.

She is the HOUSEWIFE--the "forgotten woman" of World War II.

An 8-hour day? She'd think it was Heaven! Working the "Swing Shift"? The babies see to it that she does! Hers are the endless tasks of caring for her home and her family . . . of solving the problem of shortages in food . . . packing lunch boxes . . . preparing tin cans and saving grease and scrap and paper . . . and more and still more.

You won't hear much about the American Housewife's contributions when it's over--that's why we felt somebody ought to do this bit of reminding . . . now.

Paxsons Win Class B Tilt With East End As Hahn Hurls No-Hitter

Strains blanked the Modern Grill 1 to 0 and the Salem China team edged the Recreation 3-2 in two closely-fought Class A league softball games Tuesday night at Centennial park.

It was a pitchers' duel between Wright and Brudery in the Strain-Modern Grill tussle. Wright issued four hits, while Strains got three from Brudery. Strains accounted for their lone run in the first inning.

The Recreations led the Chinas 1-0 until the Potters let loose with a three-run blast in the fifth inning. The Recreations scored another run that inning but neither team scored after that.

Class B teams opened a round-robin of play since time will not permit the completion of a full fourth-round schedule. In last night's encounters Paxsons shut out the East End A. C.'s as Hahn turned in a no run, no hit performance.

The Metzgers walloped the Presbyterians, 21 to 10, in the other Class B fray, the Metzgers clinching the game with 12 runs scored in the last two frames.

Keltner Injury Is Break For Peters

CLEVELAND, Aug. 11.—A player who has spent most of his time plucking bench splinters from the seat of his pants becomes an important member of the Cleveland Indians infield tonight as the Tribesmen engage Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics in a twilight doubleheader.

The severe spike wound which Third Baseman Ken Keltner received in the right ankle in a game with the St. Louis Browns last Sunday gives bespectacled Russ Peters his first chance to play regularly since he joined the Redskins four years ago.

Until now his activities have consisted of serving as an infield replacement in hopelessly lost games, occasional pinch hitting chores, warming up pitchers and acting as bullpen courier for Managers Oscar Vitt, Roger Peckinpaugh and Lou Boudreau.

The Tribe's forgotten man has been at bat only 39 times this season and has an anemic .128 batting average.

Allie Reynolds and Al Smith are Tribal mound selections for the double bill with Orrie Arnzen and Lou Cloia elbowing for the Mack-men.

OHIO CONFERENCE OPTIMISTIC ABOUT POST-WAR SPORTS

Revival Expected by Colleges that Have Dropped Football for Duration

By FRITZ HOWELL
LORAIN, Aug. 11.—Although nine members of the Ohio Athletic conference have abandoned football for the duration, Commissioner George Daniel predicted today the 19-college loop would experience a post-war sports revival exceeding that enjoyed before the world conflict started.

Ashtand, Heidelberg, John Carroll, Kent State, Kenyon, Marietta, Ohio Northern, Toledo and Wittenberg will not participate in the pigskin parade this year, and several others may drop out before the season starts.

"I believe," Commissioner Daniel said, "the Ohio Athletic conference will hold together during the war, even though playing schedules are greatly curtailed. By sticking together, and holding our regular meetings, our post-war problems will not be so perplexing. There is every indication the conference will remain solvent, and so gain prestige and strength for the years after the conflict."

Post-War Revival Seen
"I look for a real revival of sports in our colleges, both of the inter-collegiate and the intramural brands following the war. The revival probably will put sports far ahead of the place athletics enjoyed before the conflict started."

Commissioner Daniel took a broad view of the athletic situation in his loop, declaring:

"Winning a war is a bigger and more important job than winning football games. The conference schools are giving their boys to the big job. One thing is certain, the boys going from our colleges into the armed services are in better physical shape as a result of the sports program fostered by the conference. Those boys will make good soldiers, for they were good, clean athletes."

"The ranks of the conference game officials have been thinned to a great extent by the war, too, but we'll have enough good referees and umpires left to handle the curtailed schedule in good shape. Our entire officiating schedule will have to be changed however, and I can't make the new assignments until we find out just which schools will play this fall, and their full schedule of games."

Nothing has been done about the 1943-44 conference basketball schedules, Daniel said, but he predicted many of the schools which dropped football would get back into the athletic scrap by putting cage teams on the court.

"The necessary manpower is so much less," he said, "that this will be entirely feasible."

Next regular meetings of the conference is scheduled Dec. 3 in Columbus, Commissioner Daniel said. He hinted, however, that J. J. Smith of Muskingum college, proxy of the circuit, might call an earlier session to clear up the basketball situation.

Buys Whirlaway's Daddy
LEXINGTON, Ky., Aug. 11.—William Hells, New Orleans sportsman, was the proud owner today of a $68,000 chestnut colt sired by Blenheim II, daddy of Whirlaway and other great thoroughbreds.

He bid in the prize youngster during a spirited auction last night at the annual yearling sales, transferred from Saratoga Springs, N. Y., to Keeneland park because of wartime transportation difficulties.

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—Zeke (the banana man) Bonura is handling the Army's baseball in North Africa. . . . And Johnny Goodman has been decked out in his G.I.'s at Fort Crook, Neb. . . . The tip is out that George P. (Wetwash) Marshall is trying to trade his Washington Redskins' holdout, Andy Farkas, to the New York Giants for Tuffy Leemans—even up. . . . How about throwing in three shirts, damp-dry, George? . . .

Next step probably is a time table with "x-runs Sundays and alternate blue Mondays." . . . That's be for the Athletics, naturally. . . . Fat Purcell of the Minneapolis times notes it is unlawful out that-a-way to use narcotics while hunting deer. . . . And inquiries when is it legal? . . . Gorgeous Gloria Callen has about made up her mind to call it a swimming career after this year—and grab one of those movie contracts she's been turning down.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR
Dick Freeman, Houston Chronicle: The woes of a wartime coach are many and varied. Jess Neely at Rice expected to look over some 90 youths in the summer football practice session last Thursday. The number was cut down with no notice. The reason? It was pay-day for the naval trainees stationed at Rice, and if you think they are going to abandon the line in front of the pay-window to practice football, you don't know youths. . . . (Or old guys, either, Dick).

K. P. FEELINGS
Jimmy Murphy, Canton (Ill.) Ledger sports ed., reports that Sgt. Vince Garrity, the ex-Chicago Cubs bat boy, is managing the Camp Ellis baseball team. . . . And, so far as is known, is the only army sergeant with two lieutenants as assistants—Robert Farmer and James Verkes, the team's coaches. . . . "They take orders, too," Jimmy hears. . . . The Santa Ana (Calif.) air baseball team, powered by Joe DiMaggio, won't have a thing on the base's grid outfit—what with Indian Jack Jacobs, the Oklahoma block-buster and Merle Hapes of the o' miss "h-twins" bouncing around the backfield.

The temperature of the sun on its surface has been estimated at about 10,000 degrees Fahrenheit.

Studious Servicemen Pursue Institute Courses Abroad

(By Associated Press)

MADISON, Wis., Aug. 11.—A soldier studies algebra while bouncing along an African bush trail in a jeep; another finds 30 hours a week in the midst of field maneuvers to study radio operation and telephony.

Such pictures are not fancy; they are part of the record of the United States Armed Forces Institute. Scores of statements like these are on file at the institute's headquarters.

They express the appreciation of some 40,000 soldiers, sailors, marines, coast guards, WACS, WAVES and SPARS now enrolled in the courses offered by the institute in co-operation with 82 universities and colleges.

Mail sacks bring an average of 1,500 applications a week, in addition to about 6,000 lesson reports and letters each day.

Thumbing through the stack, Lieut. Col. William R. Young, institute commandant, comes upon a sailor's apologetic note from somewhere in the Pacific; he was unable to get ashore to buy drawing paper and had to use the back of an old map to prepare his lesson in trigonometry.

Work Under Handicaps
"Many of them work under handicaps," Col. Young comments. "But they're game. They stick with it."

The institute was founded April 1, 1942, by the War department to serve army personnel below the rank of commissioned officers. It was expanded later to include the other branches of the armed services. More than 700 courses are offered, some directly by the institute, but most of them through affiliated schools.

About 60 per cent of the students are stationed overseas; the average enrollee is 25 years of age; and has been in service 17 months. The army, insisting on uninterrupted attention to basic training, does not permit personnel to enroll until they have been in service at least four months. Members of other services can enroll two months after induction.

The cost to the students is nominal.

inal. For the institute courses, the fee is $2 each. For courses taken through cooperating schools, the fee is one half the normal charge, the other half being allotted by the branch of the service in which the enrollee is serving.

Although the program is running smoothly, after 15 months of operation, institute officials are developing new educational facilities all the time, such as self-teaching textbooks and foreign language instruction through use of phonograph records. Their plan is to equip American service men and women with a basic knowledge of the language used in whatever part of the world they are sent.

SHARP-SHOOTING NAVY GUN CREW SINKS JAP SUB

EXCELLENT MARKSMANSHIP of the after deck gun crew, above, of the U. S. submarine chaser PC-457, polished off a Japanese submarine that apparently was lying in wait for an American convoy somewhere in the Pacific. After the 170-foot craft had dropped depth charges and twice rammed the undersea boat, this gun crew poured seven shells at the sub, four hitting at the waterline and one penetrating the conning tower and sending the sub to the bottom. Reds Capture Village After Battle For Kharkov

One of the five Russian columns threatening Kharkov has captured Siatino, 12 miles north. A second was reported 30 miles due west and a third 45 miles northwest. Another force has stormed across the upper donets river to within 20 miles of the city on the east, while a fifth is 25 miles due east, the Russian communique declared.

The Russian advance was made in the face of stubborn German resistance.

The drive on Bryansk, another vital base for German operations in Russia, still was in its early stages. As yet there were no indications of the development of an encircling movement such as marked the capture of Orel from which the advance was launched a week ago. Nevertheless, the Red army was making rapid progress, having covered more than half the distance from Orel.

Horticulture Group Hears O.S.U. Experts

Earl Tussing, vegetable specialist of Ohio State university, and Frank Beach, associated with the horticultural department at the state university, were speakers at a meeting of the Mahoning County horticultural society last night at the Frank Agnew farm near Boardman.

Members of the Columbiana county Horticultural society and of the Columbiana-Mahoning County "Vegetable Growers' association attended.

Approximately 175 inspected the 10-acre potato crop and the peach and apple orchards at the farm before hearing addresses by the two university experts and J. C. Hedge, Mahoning county extension agent.

Tussing, discussing potato ceiling prices for August and September, explained the rules of the price-setting system and cited cases to illustrate the system's workings. He warned growers that this is an ideal "big year" and the only protection for the crop is spraying very five to eight days until potato vines mature.

Beach, in a survey of the peach crop this year, said it was "spotty," with fair prospects in the northern orchards and poor in the southern. The shortage of cherries, strawberries, plums and pears is more serious than anticipated at first, he declared.

Hedge explained that the county extension service offers almost the only solution to the farmer's acute labor shortage problem, urging those who will need help in harvesting crops to place their order for labor with the agent's office before the date of harvest.

Peach growers of northern Columbiana and Mahoning counties, meeting at the Agnew farm, compared notes on prices for the season. Growers, who have already sold peaches, receiving six to seven dollars a bushel, said the price is not expected to drop below five dollars per bushel.

Mussolini Admitted In Interview That War Was Avoidable

BERN, Switzerland, Aug. 11.—Benito Mussolini in his last interview with a correspondent of the Corriere Del Ticino of Lugano June 6—six weeks before his downfall—admitted Italy could have remained out of the war.

Describing his visit to Il Duce in the spacious hall of the Palazzo Venezia, the correspondent said he found him lean but bearing his 60 years well "despite stomach ulcers from which he has been suffering." He said Mussolini appeared sad.

"Times are hard," Mussolini told the correspondent, who reported that he spoke of the difficulty of feeding the Italian people; the hardships under the bombs whose number and weight are a prodigality that is entirely American. The war, Mussolini said, would be long; many nations until now out of it—Sweden, Spain and Turkey—would probably be forced to enter.

The German soldiers, Mussolini was quoted as saying, dominated the Russian; the Briton is a hard fighter, while the American, "the last arrival in the field, might in a year or so become an excellent soldier."

Asked if Italy could have kept out of the conflict, Mussolini replied promptly, "certainly," the correspondent said, and then added: "She could have, as a small state, remained outside of the struggle. As a neutral, she probably would have had great financial and commercial advantages. But Italy judged the honor of a great nation did not coincide with only material profits. She had already proclaimed her vital rights and placed before the conscience of the world her problems of expansion, raw materials, work and production. To have confined herself to a neutrality based on monetary gain would have been a definite renunciation of a century-old goal. That was the reason we launched ourselves ardently into the battle."

tories engaged in the manufacture of Diesel engines for submarines and producing tanks, aircraft parts and motors.

On the outskirts of Nuernberg is located a Messerschmitt fighting manufacturing plant.

The raid followed by 24 hours thundering RAF attacks on the twin cities of Mannheim and Ludwigshafen in the Rhineland.

German air raiders retaliated by making their first attack on Britain this month last night, dropping a few bombs over East Anglia.

The air ministry disclosed RAF bombers had dropped 136,100 tons of bombs on Germany since the war began, more than half of which were unloaded since Jan. 1. It was estimated that the Germans had dropped 71,000 tons of bombs on Britain since the beginning of the war, but only 2,000 tons during 1943.

COUNTY HAS DROP IN RELIEF CASES

LISBON, Aug. 11.—The material value of relief issued in Columbiana county was considerably upped by the distribution of $4,577.62 worth of surplus clothing during July, which with direct air amounting to $1,208.80, brought the total to $5,786.42 for the month, according to a report submitted to commissioners by Miss Bernice Harbaugh, relief director.

Direct relief last month cost $1,208.80 compared with $1,351.24 the preceding month. The greatest number of relief cases were in Washington, Center and Salem townships, where costs were $247, $172 and $125, respectively, while West, Knox and Butler townships had none.

The report listed 116 cases and 219 persons as compared to the June load of 128 cases and 270 persons, while the active case load this month has been cut to 103 with 300 persons receiving aid. This is the lowest relief load since the establishment of the county agency 10 years ago, Miss Harbaugh said.

The War Today

that the only way to defeat Hitler is to annihilate his armies on the battle field, and this would involve an invasion of Europe through the historic route of France, in the war isn't to drag on interminably.

If the Allies are to undertake such an invasion it can't long be delayed. The summer is rushing by with its good fighting weather, and the opportunity presented by the Russian offensive may slip away with the arrival of autumn.

Occupation of the Italian peninsula wouldn't take us appreciably nearer our main objective. On the contrary, now that the Germans have been able to fortify the line of the Po river across northern Italy, the conquering of the country would take considerable time and involve heavy fighting.

The Allies might be able to take over the lower three-quarters of Italy below the Po defenses without a prolonged struggle. But what would that get us? The only military objectives of great value are those which are in the hands of the Boche north of the Po. When we had fought our way up to the Po we should find that our main achievement had been to saddle ourselves with the government and maintenance of maybe 33,000,000 out of Italy's population of 43,000,000.

Invasion of the Balkans next wouldn't bring against Hitler from two sides the quick and heavy pressure which Moscow believes would wind the war up quickly. The alternative seems to be a blow through France, and one would expect this to figure largely in the Roosevelt-Churchill conference.

England's fishing fleet had to be protected from pirates by warships in 1580.
